In the beginning, we nurses are often too focused on the details of the patients’ conditions. We are taught that we must always follow the orders of the doctors, and we are often caught up in the minutiae of medical treatments. But as we grow in our practice, we come to realize that there is more to nursing than just caring for the sick. We learn to be advocates for our patients, to speak up for their needs, and to be their champions.

We are especially proud of the work we do in corrections, where we are often called upon to provide care for the most vulnerable of patients. We are the ones who must ensure that our patients receive the care they need, even when it may not be what they want. We are the ones who must stand up for our patients, even when it may not be popular. We are the ones who must be the voice of reason, even when it may not be easy.

But we are also proud of the work we do in other areas of healthcare. We are the ones who must ensure that our patients receive the care they need, even when it may not be what they want. We are the ones who must stand up for our patients, even when it may not be popular. We are the ones who must be the voice of reason, even when it may not be easy.

We are always proud to say that we are correctional nurses, but it is especially true now, during this COVID-19 crisis, when we are putting our lives on the line to care for our patients. We are the ones who must ensure that our patients receive the care they need, even when it may not be what they want. We are the ones who must stand up for our patients, even when it may not be popular. We are the ones who must be the voice of reason, even when it may not be easy.

In closing, I appreciate you taking the time to read this newsletter, and I hope that you will find our sites interesting and educational. Our websites are all about Nursing Scope of Practice. We will post a reminder on our FaceBook page. The first one is posted now; the second will be posted the week of May 18th.

This month, our featured, discounted class at Correctional Nurse.Net will join us for this very information-filled meeting. This month, the Bundle price will still be discounted 40% ($134.95). This month at Clinical Judgment for the Correctional Nurse, we will review two scenarios and determine whether the task assigned to each nurse falls within her/his scope of practice. Using the Scope of Practice Decision Tree developed by the National Council of State Nursing Boards, we will review the following cases and determine whether the task can be performed by an LPN, a fully licensed RN, or an Advanced Practice RN.

This month at Professional Correctional Nursing Practice, an interesting class will be held for the next ACA Winter Conference and for the NCCHC Spring 2021 Conference. There are currently no open calls for correctional nursing conference. As always, we will keep you apprised as more information is received.

Be Safe!!
